

Wendy and Kelly decided to work at a summer day camp while they were out of college on their summer vacation. They went to the state college in the city and they shared a dorm room together. The girls thought it would be fun to work with children during the daytime, and then they could go home to sleep at their parents' house.

Wendy was the director of the arts and crafts hut and Kelly was a certified lifeguard. The girls were to be picked up by a bus near their house each morning and then the bus was supposed to bring them home at four o'clock in the afternoon. Wendy said it would give them just enough time to get ready for dates in the evenings.

On the first day of camp, the girls met all of the little boys and girls as well as the other counselors. When Wendy went down to the arts and crafts hut to open it for the groups that would come in for art lessons, she reached into one of the closets for some red lanyard. Then she felt something furry run across her hand. Wendy screamed and jumped up and down when she saw that it was a mouse! She got a broom and tried to chase the mouse out until she saw two others run across the floor, and then Wendy dropped the broom and ran for her life.

Meanwhile at the pool, Kelly was teaching a young boy how to swim. The boy seemed to swallow some water, so Kelly sat him up on the side of the pool, but then suddenly the boy got sick in the pool. Kelly tried not to make a face because she did not want to embarrass the boy. She got a net and tried to clean the mess out of the pool, and then she poured in some disinfectant.

On the ride home from their first day at camp, the girls swapped stories. Wendy laughed when she heard about the poor little boy who had swallowed water, and Kelly could not believe that Wendy had seen three mice and promised to help her set some mouse traps the next day.

Then the girls could not decide whether they were going to like their summer jobs or not. “Well, I don’t know if we will like our jobs, but the summer nights out on the town will surely be fun!”, said Kelly.

Wendy and Kelly decided to work at a summer day camp while	12 they were out of college on their summer vacation. They went to the	25 state college in the city and they shared a dorm room together. The	38 girls thought it would be fun to work with children during the daytime,	51 and then they could go home to sleep at their parents' house.	63
Wendy was the director of the arts and crafts hut and Kelly was	76 a certified lifeguard. The girls were to be picked up by a bus near their	91 house each morning and then the bus was supposed to bring them	103 home at four o'clock in the afternoon. Wendy said it would give them	116
just enough time to get ready for dates in the evenings.	127
On the first day of camp, the girls met all of the little boys and	142 girls as well as the other counselors. When Wendy went down to the	155 arts and crafts hut to open it for the groups that would come in for art	171 lessons, she reached into one of the closets for some red lanyard. Then	184
she felt something furry run across her hand. Wendy screamed and	195 jumped up and down when she saw that it was a mouse! She got a	210 broom and tried to chase the mouse out until she saw two others run	224 across the floor, and then Wendy dropped the broom and ran for her	237
life.	238
Meanwhile at the pool, Kelly was teaching a young boy how to	250 swim. The boy seemed to swallow some water, so Kelly sat him up on	264
the side of the pool, but then suddenly the boy got sick in the pool.	279
Kelly tried not to make a face because she did not want to embarrass	293
the boy. She got a net and tried to clean the mess out of the pool, and	310
then she poured in some disinfectant.	316
On the ride home from their first day at camp, the girls swapped	329 stories. Wendy laughed when she heard about the poor little boy who	341 had swallowed water, and Kelly could not believe that Wendy had seen	353 three mice and promised to help her set some mouse traps the next day.	367

Then the girls could not decide whether they were going to like	379 their summer jobs or not. “Well, I don’t know if we will like our jobs,	394
but the summer nights out on the town will surely be fun!”, said Kelly.	408